SECTION 1 – DIVISION HQ

1.1 - 3rd Army Division is a conglomeration of three different regiments and one organically attached artillery battalion. The regiments that make up the 3rd are as follows 23rd Line Regiment, 325th Republic Assault Regiment, and the 6th Armour Regiment. See Section 2 for more detailed information on each regiment.

1.2 - The Division is under the command of Brigadier Tylr Collins. The divisional command staff, or Headquarters Company, consists of 5 staff officers, 188 support personnel, and 76 troopers in two security platoons for a total of 274 men in HQ Company.

1.3 - The 1st Battalion of the 2nd Artillery Regiment is a permanent and important part of the 3rd Division's striking force. The artillery battalion makes up for the lack of regimental and battalion artillery units that plague the units assigned to the 3rd. Since the 3rd was formed before Regimental and Battalion artillery units were made standard, 3rd has an independent artillery battalion.

SECTION 2 – REGIMENTAL BREAKDOWN

2.1 - The 3rd has three assigned regiments, each commanded by a Lt. colonel or a colonel. They are:

23rd Line Regiment

325th Republic Assault Regiment

6th Armour Regiment

Commanders of each regiment have yet to be sorted. NPC commanders are assumed to be leading, but none have yet to be named.

2.2 - Regiments are commanded by a lieutenant or full colonel who runs an HQ identical in structure to that of a division, usually consisting of 136 men. There is an additional security platoon of 54 men. Regimental HQ is where the most extensive repairs are performed, and some HQs even have a capacity to machine or nanomanufacture precise spare parts from very basic components. Regimental strengths vary because of regiment type, but on average regiments contain about 2,555 men. Exact unit compositions can be found in sections 2.3 - 2.5.

2.3 - The 23rd Line regiment consists of 2 line battalions and a Headquarters Company. Unit strength at 100% combat effectiveness is 2,748 men and 130 repulsorlift troop transports. Each battalion contains 4 lettered companies of 319 men per company; 1,279 men and 65 repulsorlift troop transports per Battalion. 1st Battalion is lead by Major Plough, with A Company, 1/23 being lead by Captain Coup Fett, with Lieutenants Miles Fortis and Thomas "Neo" Anderson leading 1st and 2nd Platoons respectively.

2.4 - The 325th Republic Assault or heavy weapons Regiment is designed to be dropped into a hot zone and is meant for heavy fighting. It comprises of 2 battalions and the standard regimental Headquarters Company. 2,735 men, 121 repulsorlift tanks, and 53 heavy tanks comprise the entire combined manpower of the regiment. Each battalion is comprised of 4 lettered companies.

2.5 - The 6th Armour Regiment is usually not deployed alone. It's normally deployed only as part of 3rd Army Division. The New Republic military considers an armor regiment to have too much firepower for the normal regimental engagement. The 6th does not have enough infantry to hold any ground it might take which would justify using the regiment. A line armor regiment contains 2,752 men; with 100 hover transports, 204 repulsorlift tanks, and 106 heavy tanks. The 6th is broken down into 2 Squadrons of 4 lettered Troops each. Each Troop is made up of 3 Platoons.

SECTION 3 – ARTILLERY BATTALION

3.1 - Artillery battalions have three lettered batteries plus a normal assault (heavy weapons) company to provide protection, giving the artillery an opportunity to retreat and set up elsewhere if necessary. 3rd Army Division's artillery battalion has 608 men divided into 3 lettered artillery batteries, and one lettered assault company of 216 troops for a total of 824 men.

3.2 - 1st Artillery Battalion, 2nd Artillery Regiment consists of 15 Loratus Mobile Photon Artillery pieces, 27 medium artillery pieces, and 33 light artillery pieces. Each battery consists of 5 Loratus Mobile Photon Artillery pieces, 9 medium artillery pieces, and 11 light artillery pieces, in addition to the attendant vehicles required to move the artillery.

3.3 - The New Republic assigns artillery battalions to older divisions that do not have the now standard battalion and regimental artillery units. A-C batteries and D company 1/2 are technically a part of the 2nd Artillery Regiment, under the 1st Artillery Division, but are under the independent command of 3rd Army Division. The Battalion is permanently assigned to the 3rd and cannot be reassigned unless the New Republic Army orders a complete reorganization of the Army or disbands the 3rd as a combat division.

Colonel Conwy. 1st Platoon of E Company is responsible for gracing the Battalion with the nickname. 1st Platoon, E Company is lead by First Lieutenant Terther, 1st Squad is lead by Sergeant Muhvoll and 2nd Squad is lead by Sergeant Wurl.
